The challenge

Nitehero was born from the need to make people, and especially women feel safe when they encounter dangerous situations in the streets. Users who feel unsafe at any time can use the application to request support from the Nitehero team who will guide them to the nearest safe space.

Nitehero's biggest challenge was to hire developers in the shortest possible time so they can start testing their product-market fit and start their fundraising roadshow. They had a limited budget of 50K EUR to build their mobile app, and they were looking for reliable, committed developers who have prior experience in MVP development.

Results

They collected different quotes from mobile app development agencies that ranged in cost between 60.000 - 75.000 EUR to hire 2 developers + 1 interim CTO, which did not fit their budget nor their timelines.
